Our stock selection process seeks to systematically invest in high quality, attractively valued companies with favorable long-term growth prospects. Viewed from a portfolio construction lens, we believe that outperformance can be obtained by actively managing the portfolio's volatility via portfolio construction.

QUARTERLY COMMENTARY 31 MARCH 2023

Calendar 2022 was a wild ride for markets caused by war, inflation and interest rates. Just looking at the top-level index returns for the first quarter, 2023 seems to have gotten off to a slightly more optimistic start. Global equities were up 7.3% in US dollars. Even global bonds rose 3% in US dollars. This was a reversal of the largely negative year experienced by both asset classes last year.

However, given the events of the past quarter, one is forced to question some of the perceived optimism. The significant rate hikes in the US claimed more victims. Two bank failures in the US sent markets and global financials into a tailspin. This would eventually result in another major move – the regulator-“enforced” takeover of Credit Suisse by UBS. This meant, in the month of March, US banks were down almost 19% and European banks lost almost 14%. Global value (which, traditionally, has a large weight in banks and financials) was therefore barely up 1.2% in the quarter. What drove the market was global growth gaining almost 14% in the quarter. Contributors were US communication services and IT going up 20% over the period.

US and global growth stocks have rerated on the back of US and global bond yields coming down. The US 10-year yield hit a high of around 4.24% last year but ended this March at below 3.5%. The bank crisis had a big part to play in this, as it likely means these institutions will have to further tighten lending into the economy. The market has interpreted this as a positive, as it may mean rate hikes coming to an end (with maybe even the start of rate cuts). Regionally, Europe provided strong returns, up more than 10% in USD, bouncing back from the energy crisis-induced slowing. Emerging market and Chinese equities delivered positive but tepid 4% to 5% returns in USD.

Performance

The Old Mutual Global Islamic Fund significantly outperformed its benchmark over 12 months. Top contributors were the overweight positions in the healthcare and consumer discretionary sectors. Star performers within these sectors were Novo Nordisk, which we believe is delivering cutting-edge technology regarding obesity management, and AutoZone, a quality retailer with its DIY segment (~75% of sales) being defensively positioned for any recession. The fund's underweight exposure to staples caused a drag on performance.

Fund positioning

The fund is currently underweight to the US and overweight to Europe. While there were numerous drivers for Europe's performance there are risks of some pullback. The fund continues to be overweight to healthcare and we have a preference for pharma on defensive exposure, which historically outperformed during volatile market conditions. We are relatively underweight to information technology, with a preference for high profitability companies with application software such as Adobe and SAP.

Looking forward

The fund is well positioned for the year ahead, with a good mix of long-term winners and defensive companies. We will keep a close eye on inflation and how monetary policies evolve. We do believe that earnings will fall due to higher inflation, weaker demand and high inventories as core goods cool. This will result in lower global growth. Having quality companies helps to preserve capital through volatile market conditions
